Function and purpose of the preliminary document

The Preliminary Document Revision is the first act by which the Lombardy Region intends to submit to the broader confrontation in the manner and content of the revision of the Regional Territorial Plan (PTR) and the Regional Landscape Plan (PPR) 2010. It is addressed to the institutions, to the citizens, the political, economic and social aspects of Lombardy and anyone who wishes to provide input into the review.

So that the comparison can produce useful results to the review it is necessary to share a set of values and meanings that taken by all social and political actors of the planning process, represent a common language by which to measure the consistency of policies and programs with the inspiring criteria of subsidiarity, adequacy, differentiation, sustainability, participation, collaboration, flexibility, compensation and efficiency introduced by the law for the government of territorio.¹

To this end, this proposal for a revision of the PTR-PPR wants to be an interpreter of these criteria outlining a plan capable of,

- Define, according to the principle of flexibility, compensation and efficiency, the shape of the plan and the most appropriate instruments to ensure a continuous process of change of government, the environment and landscape;
- Enable the participation as a condition for a reformulation shared and therefore effective the plan;
- Activate, according to the principle of subsidiarity, adequacy and differenziazione² the co-design of the different levels of government land to the administrative levels more appropriate to the scale of the phenomena, the effects that they produce, the organizational dimension and operating capacity;
- Share guidelines for the review of the contents of the PTR inescapable implementing the principle of sustainability, not only the environment, the policies of government land;

Preliminary review

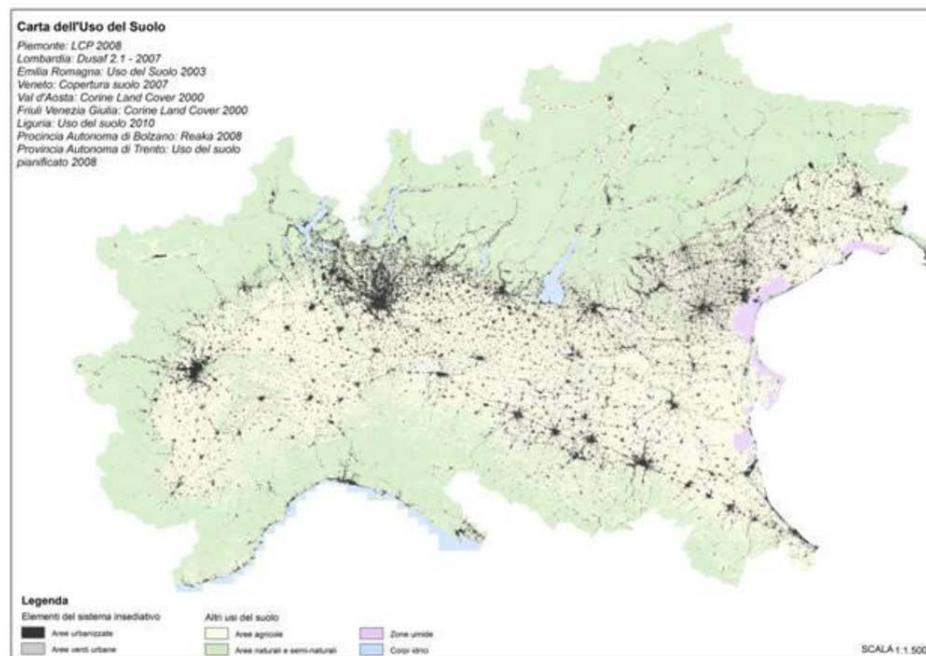

In this context, the document proposes a preliminary review before formulating strategies and goals, which in the process of construction and operation of the plan will be developed, clarified and deepened. This is therefore a document which it submits a proposal to the comparison of content, large but not yet final, preliminary to the debate and to the process for the construction of the shared plan. It is therefore open to contributions that can be collected from the company and from the territories in the meetings that will be scheduled.

The Preliminary Document Revision consists of six chapters

- The first explains the reasons that led the Lombardy Region to initiate the revision of the PTR-PPR 2010;
- The second briefly describes some aspects of a changing context;
- The third anticipates the main topics of the review of the PTR;
- The fourth outlines the main characteristics of the revision of the PPR;
- The fifth describes the three scenarios towards sustainability addressed by the review;
- The sixth anticipates the hypothesis of the structure and form of the plan;

At the end of the document contains a first hypothesis of path for the construction of a shared plan.
